

AUTOMOBILE

Off Broken Bridge Into River at Smithville.

My Leaders of Louisville Seriously
No Light or Other Warning of Danger.

Two of the South-west Louisville were painfully hurt, a prohibition young society man of Louisville was seriously, perhaps fatally, injured, and two other well known men and a chauffeur sustained bruises of a slighter character when an automobile containing a returning Mammoth Cave excursion party plunged at full speed through a broken bridge below the top of Salt river, twenty feet below Smithville, at 1 o'clock Monday morning.

Under the delirious of the shattered auto Shelby Bonnie, Carl Wiseman and Sam Barr lay helpless and bleeding, pinned to the ground. Mr. Bonnie's foot was caught in the ribs of the machine top. All the weight of the wreckage rested on Carl Wiseman, crushing his leg almost to a pulp, while escaping oil burned and sizzled upon his back. Richard Menefee limped a few feet, only to fall helpless, breathless and unconscious to the ground. Back and forth along the river bank, under the incline and towards the road, the two women, Miss Elizabeth Sherley and Mrs. Shelby Bonnie, their bodies racked with pain, walked to and fro, forgetting of their own injuries and bravely calling for help that the men pinned to the earth might be rescued.

Those injured and the character of their injuries follow:

Mr. Menefee, rupture of the bladder, ribs, legs blood loss and internal hemorrhages.

Shelby Bonnie, leg broken in two places, shoulder dislocated, bodily bruised and head cuts.

Mrs. Shelby Bonnie, right eye bruised and cuts on right chin; slight body bruises and skin fractures.

Carl Wiseman, leg broken almost to a pulp, back slightly burned, body badly bruised.

Miss Elizabeth Sherley, finger broken, wrist fractured, jaw badly bruised.

Sam Barr, chauffeur, slight burns, bruises, right leg fractured and three broken fingers.

Suffering from loss of blood, pains and wounds, Richard Menefee, lies at the Norton Infirmary in a most critical condition, with chances of life and death even, according to the attending physicians. The other members of the party, though suffering all from painful wounds, and shocks, are not in a doubtful state, and will recover. They are all at the Norton Infirmary, except the chauffeur, who is at his home 1411 Cherokee boulevard.

The broken bridge and its deplorable consequences are traceable directly to the stupidity, stubbornness or poverty of the County Court of Spencer county. Bullitt and Spencer counties agreed to construct a bridge, built half of the structure, but Spencer decided wood would be cheaper for its half and altogether as satisfactory. Refusing to accept the bridge, the county has repeatedly pleaded for a bridge, but Spencer county refused the counsel and disregarding the pleas of all, has let the bridge remain. The accident was the result.

Under the statutes of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, counties can not be sued in damages. Officers of counties, however, can be sued in court for neglect of duty. A friend of Carl Wiseman stated last night that Mr. Wiseman will in all likelihood sue the road supervisor of Spencer county for the value of his machine, as it was totally demolished, and through no fault of his own or that of his chauffeur. It was valued at several thousand dollars.—Herald.

DUCK SPRING
Sited About Four Miles From Louisville On Preston Street Road Ends And Flows With The Tide.

Prestonia, July 6.—Duck Spring is situated about four miles from Louisville near the Preston Street Road on a farm once owned by Mr. Samuel Phillips. It was believed at one time to be as deep as the ocean, and the negroes said during slavery that Mr. Phillips had a negro man and a team of oxen lost in that spring. It flows and ebbs with the tide. Duck Spring was a famous resort for sports who were highly entertained during the hunting season.

A Letter Which Explains Itself.
Amariello, Tex., June 28, 1908.
Mr. J. W. Scott,
Louisville, Ky.

DEAR FRIEND:
I am writing you in regard to a pair of shoes which I bought of you Dec. 28, 1907. They were the Star Brand viscounted conqueror; price $4.00. I wore them a week or so in the Kentucky mud and mud and have been wearing them continuously since, in all sorts of conditions. I wore them all day hunting in melting snow with out rubbers, and came into camp with dry feet. They are covered with concrete several times a week, are strained in climbing over forms and abused in every way. The soles gave out about the last of April, and I half-suspected that the uppers had a hole or a crack in them; they are nearly as soft as when new, and they are still waterproof. The strings gave out a couple of weeks ago, and one stitch is broken in one of the back seams. Perhaps you had better call the attention of the makers to that defect. When they wear out (if they ever do) I shall order another pair of the same kind from you. You told me when I bought them that you would give me my money back if I was not satisfied, and after thinking the matter over carefully, I have decided that you may keep the money.

Sincerely yours,
E. E. JOHNSON.

JOHN MCCREARY

Charged With Assaulting Another Inmate In Confederate Home Heart Firm.

John McCreary, the aged Confederate veteran, who while an inmate at the Confederate Home, at Potosi, Mo., was assaulted by Edward O'Brien, an old comrade with an ax Tuesday, has been heard from, and it is believed that he is now in Texas. An effort may be made by the authorities of Oldham county to have him arrested and returned to Kentucky.

Direct word from McCreary was received in a letter from him to Charles Calvert, assistant postmaster at Potosi, Mo. In the letter, McCreary has been turned over to Col. Henry George, the commandant at the home. McCreary said that he had no intention of killing O'Brien when he struck him and claims that he hit him with the handle and not with the blade of the ax, as it is alleged. He is angry at O'Brien for the assault.

He is angry at O'Brien for the assault. O'Brien had circulated about him as the motive for assault. The letter was dated Sanders, Ky., and the writer expressed his intention of leaving at once for Texas.

O'Brien is able to be up and about today. He denies that he had said anything detrimental to McCreary and claims the true cause of the assault is still as much of a mystery to him as it was when he was first attacked.

The men had been good friends. In answer to questions the officials of the home said that O'Brien had never made any complaint against McCreary and had not spoken ill of him to their knowledge.

Col. George, the commandant of the home, has been investigating the trouble and will make a report to the Board of Trustees concerning the affair at the next regular meeting, to be held the first Saturday in August. The board will then take definite action in the matter.

WORTHINGTON.
Storm Did Much Damage—Joseph Zoeller Meets With Painful Accident—Alum To Be Made of County.

July 13.—Horace Oglesby will leave Saturday for Chattanooga, Tenn., where he will start a branch whisky house and will remain there in the future.

The storm last week did much damage in this vicinity, the lightning splitting two telephones poles and killing two fine milk cows for Mrs. J. W. Doves.

Joseph Zoeller met with a painful accident last week by having his arm dislocated. He is doing nicely but it was necessary to take his substitute on the route for several days to assist him with the mail.

Several from here enjoyed the picnic given by Louis Schuler at the home of Edward Zehnder on the Brownsville road last Monday.

The buzz of the thrasher can be heard on all sides these fine days, as there are about six in this vicinity. Each and every one is anxiously awaiting the "picture man" to come around again this week. The county is having an album made containing all the homes and families of Jefferson county, and each family can buy an album, viewing many interesting faces and beautiful homes which can not be surpassed anywhere else.

Last week the Misses Miller, of Worthington, entertained friends from Zanesville, Ohio, Pittsburg, Pa., Montgomery, Ala., and Louisville, Ky.

Mr. R. L. Miller, of Worthington, has gone to Montgomery, Ala., to visit his brother, Dr. F. C. Miller.

The ladies of the Springdale Presbyterian church, will give an ice cream supper in the church yard, July 28, beginning at 4 o'clock p. m.

Mrs. Chas. Kerling and sons, dated relatives at this place before leaving for their future home in Denver, Colo.

FROM FLORIDA

Old-Time Resident Writes Letter of Boyhood Scenes.

J. S. Funk, of Lake City, Was Born Here and Tells Reminiscent Stories of Old "Bruerstown."

Lake City, Fla., July 8.
DEAR OLD JEFFERSONIAN:
You are such a welcome visitor every week that I look forward to your coming as a child looks for Christmas. You take me back to my childhood days, and of the many happy days of my boyhood that have passed and may your days and years be as bright and happy as mine were while you sojourn in Jeffersonstown.

No doubt you will be more than surprised to get a few lines from not only a Kentucky boy, but an old Jeffersonian boy. I was raised in Jeffersonstown, which years ago was called Bruerstown. Old man Bruner was the founder. He built and lived in an old house next to the corner drug store, known to me as Apple's Drug Store. But the old house is like the old citizens—some have gone to a better world, while others are scattered all over this broad land of ours.

When I look over your valuable paper of the past, I am glad to have been made in the last few years, it is wonderful. I would hardly know the old home. It would puzzle me to know where the old citizens were, the boys used to spend so many happy hours, and the old stone school-house, where we boys would so often feel the pulse of the town, which was always handy, for it was carried in the back pocket.

But I want to tell you of our little city—Lake City, Fla. It is the county seat of Columbia county, with 7000 inhabitants, three railroads, a $35,000 hotel, State Baptist College, best public school in the state, churches of all denominations, mills and factories, and surrounded with beautiful lakes in the heart of the city and all about it. It is a fine place to live.

We are between the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico, about 75 miles from each. So we always have a breeze. We have the largest state in the union east of the Mississippi river, and has all kinds of soils and produces most anything that grows in the South. We have the best sources of forest, mines, soil and sea, and is not subject to severe storms or droughts. The winters are pleasant with a light frost and during the summers are cool and pleasant.

If anything, fear the winters. Well, for fear I will tire you out, I will close for this time. I am, as ever, your friend and comrade.

Respectfully,
J. S. FUNK,
Lock Box, 240, Lake City, Fla.

BLACKBERRY

Picking Is the Order of the Day Around Harrod's Creek.

A News Letter of the Doings of People You Know—Turning About Over and Wheat Crop Good.

Harrod's Creek, July 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Garnett S. Dick, of Frankfort, are receiving congratulations of their friends over the arrival of a fine baby girl.

Threshing is about over in this neighborhood. The yield of orchard grain is not so good as usual, although the wheat crop seems unusually fine.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Tucker, with their guest, Miss Ellen Comstock, of Columbus, Ohio, will leave soon for a trip to the Mammoth Cave. Miss Louise Tafel will also be one of the party.

Mrs. —Sherley and daughter, Miss Lily, who spent the winter in Cuba and who have been in Chicago and New York for some time, are now at their country home near this place.

There will be no preaching at the Prospect Christian church on Sunday next, as the pastor, Rev. A. R. Lipcomb, is away on his annual vacation.

Blackberry picking is the order of the day at this time. The early cars from the city bringing out many every day with baskets and pails for the purpose of taking back with them this fruit 'till grows for all and is free to all for the picking. It is a great pity that some of these people do not appreciate the kindness of the farmers in allowing them to have the berries, but will take other things home with them in addition to the fruit.

Messrs. G. R. Lancaster and A. H. Hamber, postmaster and assistant postmaster, respectively, of Jeffersonville, Ind., spent Sunday and Monday with L. T. Wilhoite, near Prospect.

ONE of them there "Director" gowns has been seen on a woman at the Louisville Hotel in Louisville. We are informed that the form was perfect.

Is the Jeffersonian worth recommending to your friends and neighbors? If not, quit reading it. Any good thing is worth sending on; any bad thing should be stopped.

For the third time W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska, has been nominated for President by the Democratic party. This is an honor which stamps Mr. Bryan as one of the most popular men in America. John W. Kern is to be his running mate, and with Taft and Sherman leading the Republican hosts, a lively contest is in prospect.

DURING the past few days great numbers of renewal subscriptions to The Jeffersonian have been coming in. The paper being a little over one year old. We have had two to stop their papers so far. This is indeed very gratifying to the management. The Jeffersonian has come to stay. It's something the people want and something the county needs.

The serious accident which happened to the party of Louisville pleasure seekers early Monday morning in attempting to cross the Salt River bridge at Smithville should at once direct the attention of our authorities to Jefferson county public highways. The conditions of many of our bridges are fearful, and the road supervisors should investigate the matter. Just last week the writer passed over a rickety bridge above Anchorage and held his breath for fear of going through. The proper authorities should attend to this matter at once, or we may hear of another catastrophe, something like the one caused by the alleged neglect of Spencer county officials.

Why do so many men refrain from showing their affection to their wives or to their friends while they are living? A man will spend $25 to buy cut flowers for a dead friend's coffin or to go on his wife's grave when he has spoken a kind word or spent 25 cents for flowers for his wife or friend when alive. This wife or friend would have fainted. Don't wait till your loved ones are dead and then get some preacher to tell how good they were. Be good and throw the bouquets now.

Notice.

All sidewalks put down shall be passed upon by the committee appointed by the Board of Trustees.

IN THE MOUNTAINS.

In compliance with my promise I will send you some notes and observations. Leaving Louisville on the C. & O., we travelled the bluegrass region. Strange things met our gaze, or rather one of the most familiar sights was lacking on this trip. We have heard much about the tobacco war. Some have told us that most of the acreage of the tobacco crop would be cut out in 1908. Others have told us with equal vehemence that there would be as much tobacco grown in 1908 as usual. We passed through Shelby, Henry, Franklin, Woodford, Fayette, Clarke, Montgomery and Bath counties, all typical Bluegrass counties, and after carefully watching for tobacco the entire distance, we saw positively that not field, patch, or plant of tobacco was seen. In former years it seemed the principle crop next to bluegrass. To us it looks like the Bluegrass tobacco growers have practically won their peaceful battle against the trust. God bless them. May they win!

While the tobacco is absent from sight an unusual acreage of corn is in evidence. Some pretty well advanced, some hardly out of the clove, but the fertility of this soil guarantees a fairly good yield and that gives some encouragement to the truckers of Jefferson who now are feeding dollar corn. I failed to see how large fields of onions and potatoes which were told would take the place of the tobacco crop and which were to hurt the truckers of Jefferson so much.

As we approach the valley of the Licking we find adobe to bluegrass and approach the mountains of Eastern Kentucky where the principal products are logs, lumber and coal. The first considerable lumber point was Salt Lick on the Licking River. This comes Farmers which is an important lumber point. Here we cross the Licking and plunge into what once was "Blount" Rowan county, where twenty or thirty years ago raged one of the bloodiest feuds ever known in Kentucky and known as the Craig Tulliver feud. But the people grew tired of this and in a summary way put an end to it. Rowan now is as quiet and law-abiding as any county in the state. When we entered Rowan we began a 31 months experience which will take us through twenty-five of the most intensively mountainous counties of the state.

Late in the evening of the sixth we reached our first appointment, which was Pikeville, Pike county. Pike is the most mountainous county in the state, and possibly the largest. It borders on both Virginia and West Virginia. Has about 200 road districts. The roads, if there are any worthy the name, are worked under the old Militia system, which means that they are really not worked at all. Pikeville is on the Lewis fork of the Big Sandy and they are now engaged in the construction of a splendid iron bridge which will span the river at the town. The town claims about 1200 population. There is a good courthouse and some good business houses. Offices of numerous coal and lumber companies and a surplus of lawyers, some of whom were too lazy to work on the farm and decided to enter an easier calling. The town only knows how they live. The town has been here Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, as the County Farmers' Institute. The County Teachers' Institute and the County Sunday-school Convention were all in session these two days. Some strange sights would greet the young folks of Jefferson if they could be here. They would think it strange to see people bringing their marketing into the town on horse and mule back; bringing up, beans, butter, eggs and I even saw one old gentleman with a long sack thrown across his horse's back and in each end of that sack was two jugs of milk. I wondered whether there was not danger that in traveling over these rocky roads that milk might not be churned before he got to market with it and then how he would get the butter out the neck of the jug. But there was not much danger, for the milk I have seen was not rich enough to produce much butter. Some of the names of the creeks are Marrowbone, Blackberry, Peter, Grapevine, Feds. Some post offices John, Zebulon, Beechline and Jambores. There are about 200 school teachers registered at the institute, which is being conducted by Prof. McKenzie, of the State University. The professor is well known to Jefferson county teachers, as he has conducted several institutes in that county. He is very pronounced in his praise of the Jefferson county schools and teachers.

Amid the cares of married life
In spite of toil and business strife,
If you love your sweet wife
Tell her so.

Prove to her you don't forget—
The bond to which you're wed—
She's of life's joys, the sweetest yet.
Tell her so.

When days are dark and deeply blue,
She has her troubles just as you.
Show her that your love is true.
Tell her so.

In former days you praised her style,
And meant much care to win her smile,
'Tis just as well now worth your while,
Tell her so.

There was a time when you thought it bliss
To get a favor of one kiss,
A dozen now won't come amiss.
Tell her so.

Your love for her is no mistake,
You feel it dreaming or awake,
Don't conceal it. For her sake,
Tell her so.

She'll return for each caress
A hundred-fold of tenderness,
Hearts like hers were made to kiss.
Tell her so.

You are hers, and her's alone,
You know who she's your own.
Don't wait to carve it in stone.
Tell her so.

Never let her heart grow cold.
Richer beauties will unfold,
She's worth her weight in gold.
Tell her so.

We are satisfied with our business on a different basis; we are satisfied to save money on good quality groceries—so everybody's satisfied.

Fan Club Meets Saturday.

The Fan Club, composed of a number of our young society people, will meet with Messrs. Stewart and Emory Dravo at their country home near here Saturday evening.

Birthday Celebration.

Mrs. Sallie Blankenbaker, Miss Florence Heffley and Mrs. Cora Winand, celebrated their birthday anniversary Sunday, July 2. A fine dinner was served. Those present were Messrs. Ed Winand, and Charlie Hummel, Mrs. Lou Hummel, Miss Wisheart and Mr. Ernest Winand. All had a delightful time.

Upward of Rates.

For the campaign The Jeffersonian has made arrangements with the Courier-Journal and Times whereby we can furnish either of these papers from now until Dec. 1, 1908, and The Jeffersonian one year at a rate of $2.00. This rate will apply to orders received during June, July and August. Send in your orders at once. The earlier you get in, the more copies you receive. Address The Jeffersonian, Jeffersontown, Ky. tfr.

Ed. Croan Dead.

Hon. Ed. Croan, of Ballitt county, died Saturday, July 4, at his home near Shepherdsville. His death was caused by a carbuncle on his neck. Mr. Croan represented Ballitt and Spencer counties for two terms in the Lower House of the Legislature. He was the author of the famous dog tax law which has been recently declared constitutional by the Kentucky Court of Appeals, and was well known and popular all over the state.

Work Begun on Electric Road.

The Louisville and Eastern Railway Co. has again begun work on laying the track with its proposed electric line from Louisville to Middletown, Shelbyville and Frankfort. They have several miles of this road completed, having begun the work last year, but on account of a lack of funds during the financial stringency stopped work. Times are better now, however, and a full force of men will be kept at work until the line is completed.

Picnic At Fairgrounds.

The Cedar Creek Baptist Sunday-school next Saturday, July 18, at the Jefferson county fairgrounds. Music, addresses by well known speakers, games and plenty of good things to eat will be features of the day's outing, and a most enjoyable day is promised to all who attend. The Fern Creek cars from the city run within a short distance of the grounds.

Divorce Granted Mrs. Bridwell.

Judge Kirby granted Mrs. Lillie Bridwell a divorce from Milton Bridwell last Thursday. The suit was brought on a charge of abandonment. They were married Feb. 27, 1896, and have one child, a boy of seven years, who the mother will have full possession of. Mrs. Bridwell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hummel, of this place, and Mr. Bridwell is a member of the livery firm of Bridwell & Cornell.

Mrs. Landherr Entertains.

On Sunday, July 12, a crowd of young people were entertained at the summer home of Mrs. Joseph Landherr near Jeffersontown. Those in the crowd were Misses Henrietta Kohlmann, Justine Kohlmann, Beulah Stern, Vera Rosenberg, Catherine Hounaker, Sabina Yeager, Helen Press, Florence Keltner, Bertha Franch, Viola Franch, Anna Rosterholz, Messrs. John Heberle, John Schulz, Pat Hagen and Charles Young; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Landherr and daughter, Marion.

Boys Boss Property.

Master Commissioner R. W. Herr of the Jefferson Circuit Court sold to Mr. Dudley Vaughn, Superintendent of the County Poor House, Monday the house and lot on East Main street in Jeffersontown belonging to the heirs of the late Ferdinand Boss. The price paid was $2000. This is a fine piece of property and Mr. Vaughn secured a bargain. He will immediately paint and repair the residence, after which he proposes to rent the property.

Bargains in Groceries.

In another column in this issue of The Jeffersonian will be found the attractive advertisement of Durbin & Martin, a Louisville grocery firm well known for its low prices and good qualities of goods. They are offering sugar for three days only at $1.00 for 15 pounds and by cutting their ad out of this paper and carrying it into the store with you, they will give two pounds free. They are doing this to see if the country people patronize the merchants who help their country paper. Here's a chance to save money in groceries and at the same time do a kind act for one of the best enterprises in Jefferson county—your home paper. It's up to you.

Small Attendance at Fair.

At the public sale of lots in Logan Hickman's addition to Fern Creek last Saturday a very small crowd of the home people attended. This was regretted by Mr. Hickman and Auctioneer E. H. Sprawl, who were of the opinion that Fern Creek residents would give their aid and residence in boosting their fast-growing community. Quite a number of Louisville parties were out, however, but no sale was effected as bids were few and low. After the sale Mr. Hickman was offered $100 for each of his six lots. The property is well located and will be a fine investment for somebody looking for such.

Our Enterprising Citizens.

The interested manifest by residents of Jeffersontown in the building of a pavement in front of the old graveyard here is about the same as that shown by the patrons of our public school. At the meeting held at the office of The Jeffersonian last Saturday to discuss ways and means of building this walk, there were only four of our citizens that showed enterprise enough to attend, viz. J. W. Omor, Ed. Hoke, Fred Wobbe and M. B. Bryan. It does not speak well for our town people, nor for those having their dead buried in this neglected cemetery, for them to not show more interest in this worthy cause. It is not because the cost of building the pavement is so great, as a few cents from each one interested—or from each one who only lends a hand—would put down two or three walks. Some of our people seem to be dead to the best interests of the town and community. Nothing was done at the meeting.

THE TATTLER.

By Edwin Sylvan Miller

When the hot Denver news had spread
And Bryan's boom was high and higher,
Till he came to Tatt and said: "Alas, our fate is in the air!"

When Holman was out on the floor
To boom profits at the customers ran
He shouted a future with Japan
To Tatt's ears, they came, Japan, Japan.

"Ah, Tatt, dear, you can't be a prophet
The role of speculator is not his,
With ears aching, you're not a prophet,
Just shut your mouth and stick to business!"

Who is it in the lurid hour
Within that Colorado office
That held the balance of power?
The stenographer.

Who kept the crowd in doubt and strife,
In whom was interest most intense?
He held the bottled eloquence?
The stenographer.

He had the speeches on the docket
So one could say like a rocket
Without the screen kept in his pocket.
The stenographer.

Oh, Tattamary, a tiger has
Of politics the keenest ear
It makes some folks awful sad
It's such a fierce man, Tattamary.

This tiger told her how Murphy so
That his taste he caters,
It followed him to Denver, oh,
To hand out cold punches back in his species.

Was there one, alas, for Guffy there,
The boss shut out from Zion,
Or was that cold potato far Exclusively for Bryan?

The tiger oh, is awful over,
The woodcock still averts,
Inside or out? His drivers about Unto the passengers.

A Great Woman!

People who have seen the Hon. Thomas Taggart, National Committeeman from Indiana, will recall the perennial smile which overspreads his face on all occasions. In fact, if Mr. Taggart ever frowns he must go behind the door to do it, and the gloom must be as evanescent as the recent eclipse of the sun. Mr. Taggart is the soul of civility. At French Lick he hands the ladies down the long ball room in the evenings and the way in which he conducts some society vocalized by the band stand corner deposits her there and receives a receipt for her is beautiful to behold and makes the other men sit up and take notice. But only recently the papers had it that he was so amiable at Denver and so anxious to have a photograph taken which would be atmospheric of the party or the place, that he had a team donkey carried to his lower to be photographed therein. A cruel woman who should be a pillar of one of the party leaders—could it have been Taggart?—smiled and said as wickedly as a woman only can say it, "ah, yes, I see." If this mean mocker ever lands in Taggart's ballroom he ought to see that she is inveigled into eating soup pickles after partaking of Pluto.

Some girls were riding in the top of the style,
Said the Doctress: "These are the girls,
The Fern Creek girl I thought a merry soul
And he made her 'refer to our automobile'."

The girl from St. Matthews could not keep still
And she cried, "Hurray for our automobile!"

The lady whose face made the men's mouths
Water,
Said "We gobble folks all about the auto."

Said Miss Crescent Hill, "When we travel
After
We always go in our touring car."

While Miss Highland Park, who could not hear bragging,
Remarked: "There is naught like a bubble wagon."

But that they can't run down began to curse,
And he spoke of it as "a darn red bug."

About Social Indiscretions.

Women, much abused women, are not the only people who want to get something for nothing and indulge in the soubertine habit. The men have been giving them for their fondness for opening day with its band of music, flowers, picture cards, fans or some other trifle donated to please the children. In fact, all good people consider the wicked women will be consigned to the bargain counter and opening day department of sheol. Now, ah, the fan, the fan can boast of its masculine followers. Formerly when a man sold real estate without trislings, but not so at present. He has to offer inducements to get the prospective purchaser to come and invest. One enterprising man has originated the bargain, and barbeque attachment to sales and customers can take their choice between getting a roast of beef in the soup;

next we will see a rival agent, organizing a baby show to draw the mothers of the kids, possibly the first purchaser of a lot will have a new house, thrown in and investors in suburban property will get a cook bound over to keep the peace and also have place for one year.

Meanwhile let the burglar and barbeque scheme go merrily on, for the way to a man's pocket like the way to his heart lies down his throat.

He is sour of face, he is harsh of speech
His manner is cold and proud,
He looks at everything with a rich
He's the head of the knocker crowd;
And he can't understand why the crowd
And each can who toils for our progress beside him.

He is kind of speech, he is always gay,
He is game when it comes to the rub,
He is a splendid comrade for every day
This chief of the boozery crew,
He does good deeds as the spirit moves him,
And this is why the whole town loves him.

For the public soul he can follow lives
Good as his as his moon's eclipse,
And when it settles on each it gives
The light of his own heart to the people.
For this is the justice of men, alas,
What they give to what they give us back.

Result of Printer's Ink.

A Louisville girl who has been mouling a vile swathe in other cities and who has attained the truly feminine satisfaction of making all the other women envious and miserable came home on a visit this summer.
Everybody was on the quiver to see her—there had read columns about her in the big papers and heard all sorts of stories of her brilliant triumphs, her admirers, none of them with less than a hot million or so in his inside pocket, and while the other girls said
"pshaw, oh, nonsense, it's all write up and gammon," yet they lost no time trying to pasture their hungry eyes upon her of the happy chance.

She appeared at church Sunday
Alas, her gown was of white, soiled and rumpled, a sugar loaf straw hat adorned her head and a happy bunch of dragged feathers topped the hat;
that was all; she would not have made a ripple on Fourth avenue had she walked the length of that thoroughfare Saturday afternoon. There was a pretty face underneath the head piece, but it would have been one among a whole lot of other faces; you can depend upon it the feminine part of the congregation went home feeling good Sunday, while the men wondered what sort of woman it was that had come back from the East and had East since made such a howdy-do over a girl who would not attract any attention on her native heath. Possibly the ladies were right and it was all due to printer's ink;
or a press agent who made his job
a labor of love.

She sobbed he'd cease to love her
And redoubled all her love,
Because, by heaven above her,
He made her wear old clothes.
"He made her wear old clothes," he said, "the clothes you're wearing should prove and prove again,
Prove and am not carrying the whole
For anything save you."

Oh, when they were courting dear me,
In despite of her cousins and aunts,
She sat on his lap in the twilight mayhap
And thus took to dressing his hair.

But now they are married, we see,
In spite of the new woman's taunts,
She is on the spot with an iron hot,
And again she is pressing his pants.

She was fair, she was delicate and cranky
and proud,
She fancied each phase in the wide world
of womanhood was her own.
But her husband averred just what thinking aloud.

That trifle that live with this girl,
he would do for.

About her lot of giddy chaplains boyered
Each being happy to be the happy man,
Her matrimonial peace was much covered
By all-moon-soon he's the man ran.

Romantic Marriage.

One of our Louisville citizens who has recently purchased a lovely home in the country, told a friend a most romantic story of his marriage.
People had begun to fancy he would never face the preacher again and the husband hunters feared he would soon pled the statute limitations on them, when, lo, he walked off and wedded a lovely little house woman.
While receiving the congratulations of a boom friend he explained: "You see it was about Christmas time, and all the city was in a whirl of gayety, I sat in my office despondent and idle, watching the crowd go by laughing and chatting, husbands and wives, children, sweethearts, all laden with bundles and all in the highest spirits. I was never so impressed by my isolated state; here I am, I said to myself, 'alone—with no one to make merry with me at this happy season, my holiday dinner must be taken at a restaurant or hotel,' and then my silent cheerless fate waiting for me when I return. Nobody with a kind word, a sympathetic feeling to whom I may turn.' Just as I was evolving this thought in my mind I chanced to look toward my stenographer. She, too, sat quiet and melancholy. Doubtless the same thoughts were running through her head, and I suggested again. Here is this lovely woman, alone in the world, too, she has her room rent and board to pay, she has no home—now found the matter with her getting married and having a little paradise of her own like other people? I knew her well, she was good, charming, sensible. Well, I proposed then and there and was accepted and now I never cease to thank heaven for the happy inspiration of a lonely hour, for she has made the best wife a man ever had."

The motto of Society.
A good one without doubt,
"Receive the errors till they be too many to receive."

Society, its rights defined
And puts its foot to rest,
Till they have been found out.
It screens their tottering positions
And little their bones believe
"To shoo!" says it with suspicion Society demands the fact."

Why The Parks Fail.

The summer gardens seem to be having a rocky time of it this year.
All sorts of devices are being resorted to to draw the crowds, but the trouble is a cranky animal and even free crowd and free passes to shows will not always turn the trick. The trouble is that hardly any place of amusement of this character has everything its own way for two seasons. There is a rush at first and then come the high-timers complaining that the places are too tired, yet they fail to see that their patronage alone will not run a garden any more than it would run a theater or other place of resort. The funny thing about it is that those who kick hardest against the parks are the fellows who know the ropes and have slipped up on the banana peel themselves in days gone by.

One thing might be suggested to those in charge of these places and that is to muffle the young hoodlums who patronize them and stand around smoking cigarettes and ogling any good-looking woman who comes along.
You will see half grown girls and tough bloomers sauntering around, looking over their shoulders at the young fellows until finally they select a table and pay for the waiter. "Zee-wee!" Then they oggle the boys more and these come hovering nearer and nearer until presto, an acquaintance is struck up and all parake of the beer or lemonade together.
It is not the café crowd that harms the garden, but the gang that stays in the park mashing and making eyes at women. The café delegation is too smart to attract public notice by its actions; it is only the green horn and the foolish young girls and tough women from the side streets who give the place a black eye, and ultimately ruin its business.

A park is like the races and the ball game any one can come who has the needful to pay for admission, but after they get there they should be made to behave decently and when the bosses of these resorts fail to enforce their rules, they cannot kick when the public begins to get shy, and let its money congregate in its pocket.
Some of the little bad boys ought to get a spanking and the female kidnappers should be warned off. The public is weary of Pat cones in petticoats.

Miss Antoine says time and again
She still admires fast men,
And why?—the masculine man ever
Because that's the way from her.

Miss Gossie has a thousand eyes
Each victim of her male malice meets
"And every other's sonnet," he cries,
Prove and am not carrying the whole
For anything save you."

At dear Miss prude the gossiping girl,
She sends the likes names with a hand,
But graces, how she hates a scandal,
But graces, how she hates a scandal.

DESIRE FOR A CHANGE.

A Childish Trait That Clings to Us in Later Years.

"When we were children," said the head of a big department store, "do you remember how delighted we were with new toys and how quickly we tired of them? I don't suppose that we tired of them quite so quickly as the children do nowadays, for they didn't have quite so many of them.
But the fact of what we had we did it's only human nature, you know, to regard a thing as of diminishing importance when once it is in our possession."

"The application of what I'm saying is in relation to the same trait as shown by men and women. A trait which in my business life I've had plenty of opportunities to study. It's all a fancy about our growing up in every way; there are lots of childish things that we don't outgrow, and never will, and this getting tired of toys is one of them. The toys change, that's all. One of the secrets of establishing successful trade is recognition of this fact. People don't want novelties so much because they are novelties because a change is wanted, whether in wearing apparel articles of ornament, house furnishings, or means of conveyance. It's a thing, we can't get in the least excited about it, and pleasurable excitement. I think, is what most of us young and old are after in this day and generation. I don't know that the least analysis, we are very much more than our ancestors in this particular, but this age moves more rapidly than any previous one, and naturally, we show the effects. We simply have more chances to be off with the old and on with the new, and it's come to be a point of honor to avail ourselves of these chances up to the limit of our purses."

Clarence Hughes Improved.

Mrs. Noel and her two daughters, Miss Sophronia and Nellie, settled Wednesday with her sister, Mrs. George Hughes, and found the latter's son, Clarence, greatly improved after being shot with a pistol the Fourth of July.

IN LOVELY PHOENIX PARK.

The Scene of the Murders is Remembered—Though Not Kept Green.

Of all the pleasure grounds we saw abroad I liked Phoenix Park in Dublin the best, says a writer in the London. It covers nearly 3,000 acres and the seven mile drive around it is delightful.

Acres of it are let to citizens for pasture and herds of fat cattle lastly chewing under the trees or idly standing in a cool stream. The vice-regal touch not found in any other resort.

On one place when we were there a detail of nature's storm was practicing target shooting. Yonder came three dragons back from a cross-country run. The vice-regal lodge, plain and white, looked, in spite of the vastness of the green grounds about it, hot and uninviting in the glare of the August sun.

In sight of the house, but a long way from it, is the spot where English and Burke were murdered some years ago. In vain do the gardeners try to keep grass about it. As fast as a bit grows it is taken up and carried off by relic hunters.

Scores of deer were roaming about, so tame that the freest of us could close to our ear. One big stretch of rolling land was crossed and recrossed with what looked in chief distance like ditches. They are troughs, our driver told us, into which at morning and night water is pumped from the deer, which come there by the hundred to drink.

Much Impressed.
"Were you ever struck by the grandeur of nature in a storm?"
"Oh, yes, ma'am. Once particularly."
"When was that?"
"When the lightning struck me!"—
Baltimore American.
